LESS THAN SCORE FIREWORKS TOLL

Number of Injured in Country 200, Fourth "Safest and Sanest"

By International News Service

The United States observed its safest and sanest Fourth of July in history this year according to an International News Service checkup today which revealed the death and accident toll from the use of fireworks considerably less than that reported in 1928 and earlier years

Less than a score of persons were killed by fireworks while the number of injured is not expected to total 200

In the metropolitan district of New York a 7 year old girl suffered fatal burns while playing with fireworks and a man was killed when a cannon of his own manufacture exploded

One Murder Result

One murder in New York was indirectly attributed to fireworks One man shot and killed another because a firecracker, lighted by the victim, went off at his feet

Not a single death was reported in New England although 60 persons suffered injury

Four deaths and approximately 20 injuries were reported in cities and towns throughout the middle west.

Ten persons were reported hurt in Los Angeles, San Francisco and other Pacific coast cities by fireworks

Thirteen Deaths

Thirteen deaths by fireworks were reported in widely scattered sections of the country

The surprisingly low number of fatalities and accidents this year is attributed to regulations governing the use of fireworks which were in effect in many cities

Other Fourth of July deaths not traceable to fireworks totaled slightly more than 50, International News Service dispatches showed.

FLIERS SURPRISED AT NEW PLANE

CLEVELAND AIRPORT, July 5—The City of Cleveland endurance plane pilots plainly were surprised today when a strange plane came up to make the first refueling contact of the day

Louie Bashaw pilot of the refueler said Byron Nowcomb and Roy Mitchell looked up from their cabin, puzzled at first, when they saw the new refueler which replaced the one wrecked in the storm

It was the first intimation they had of the disaster that befell the first refueling plane

Everything went off fine" said Bashaw "There was no more difficulty refueling with the new ship than with the old one"

Fueler swishing against Bleriot that rear wing Newcomb and Mitchell dropped a note saying they did not wish to refuel any more than they have to because of the strain on their plane

If they succeed in setting a new endurance record the City of Cleveland pilots hope to remain in the air until they have passed the 200 mark and possibly longer depending upon the condition of their plane at that time

Thunderstorm Breaks

A fierce thunderstorm closed in on the City of Cleveland and its tender plane piloted by Louie Bashaw, Cleveland Buffalo air mail pilot, who is to relieve Bleriot to take part in the flight while they were in the air attempting a contact shortly after 8 o'clock last night

The doughty Bashaw who later was to prove himself the hero of the flight saw the storm coming but fearing that it might die of such intensity that the fueler plane would be unable to make a contact with the endurance ship again last night if he ...ay for cover then he stuck by the City of Cleveland,' which had just taken on a full load of gas, and was trying to lower bags of supplies to it when the storm broke.

Air mail pilots described the storm as one of the worst they had seen in months. There was a continual display of sharp lightning, heavy thunderclaps rolling in from out over the lake, and for 20 minutes rain fell in torrents.

During it all the endurance plane found a break in the storm and headed in the direction of Akron It evidently escaped the worst of it, but the refueling plane was not so fortunate

Pilot Bashaw headed for the airport when he saw it was futile to attempt to complete a last contact in the storm. When he was about five miles from the airport, his motor began to miss and it became apparent he could not make it back to the airport. Not only his own life, but those of his two passengers Jim Mar...

THE gigantic telephone company puts through 100 telephone calls every second over New York City's 1 730 000 telephones.

Men read that and pass on, taking for granted the greatest scientific miracle and industrial achievement.

If the calls average only two miles, from telephone to telephone, the statement means that human thought and words are carried, without effort, 17,200 000 miles in a month

It means that all the transportation facilities could not carry to and from the millions that without moving meet and talk on the telephone.

The public owes a debt to inventive genius and industrial efficiency that work such wonders.

Keen Rivalry Between Tri-Motor Planes and Small Ships Reason Back of Cleveland Endurance Flight

Tendency of Public To Accept Bigger Craft Causes Company To Act

CLEVELAND, July 5—Keen rivalry between the huge tri-motored Fokkers of the air and the smaller single-motored airplanes for the favor of the public was revealed today as the prime reason for the endurance flight of the "City of Cleveland."

The "City of Cleveland," which has been in the air more than 100 hours in an attempt to shatter the existing endurance flight record of 172 hours, 31 minutes, is a Stinson-Detroiter monoplane, powered by a single nine-cylinder Wright Whirlwind motor.

Dale Dryer, a member of the refueling crew and chief mechanic for the Stewart Aircraft Co. which is sponsoring the flight, told of the reason for the flight in an interview.

"There is keen competition at the Cleveland airport," said Dryer, "between the tri-motored planes and the single-motored planes. Because those planes powered by three motors are bulkier and built on larger lines than the single-motored machines, there has been a tendency among the public to accept them as more stable and making for greater safety.

Motor Not New

"It was for the purpose of bringing out forcefully to the public the fact that single-motored planes are just as dependable as the others, that the present endurance flight was planned. By keeping a plane aloft as many hours as the 'City of Cleveland' has been up, it proves that single-motored planes have nothing to be desired in reliability or performance."

Dryer explained that the endurance plane's motor is not new. A brand new motor, he pointed out, would not give the same satisfaction that one already broken in cures, for the same reason that an automobile which has been used a few weeks gives a better performance than one in use for the first time.

Motor Overhauled

The nine-cylinder Wright whirlwind motor in the "City of Cleveland," which has been turning over constantly since 6:26:51 p. m. (E. S. T.) last Friday, when the endurance pilots, Byron Newcomb and Roy Mitchell, took off, had been used in flight for approximately 50 hours before the present test.

After it was selected for the "City of Cleveland," the motor was taken to the plant of the manufacturer in Paterson, N. J., for a thorough overhauling. Every part was tested and reinserted there to make sure that all preventable motor trouble was eliminated.

Success of the flight in a large measure depends upon Dryer, who as chief mechanic, was responsible for the condition of the "City of Cleveland" when it took off on its record-breaking attempt. He also is responsible for keeping the motor of the refueling plane in first class condition.

Condition Now Ship

When the old refueling plane was wrecked during the storm, Dryer and a crew of expert mechanics got into action immediately. Although they have had little sleep since the flight first took off, they worked through the night reconditioning the new plane as a refueler, with only a few minutes rest occasionally for a cup of coffee and a sandwich.

In the event of trouble to the refueling motor, an exact duplicate of the "City of Cleveland's," another Wright whirlwind motor, waits within the hanger and could be installed in about four hours, according to Dryer.

Plans have been completed for a riotous reception for the fliers, Newcomb and Mitchell, when they finally descend. A downtown hotel has offered the use of an entire floor for the celebration, and the offer has been accepted. The fliers first will be given a chance to make up for the sleep they lost and they will be taken to the hotel for the official reception.

GOVERNOR GREETS LOCAL OFFICIALS

Converses Across Street to City Hall While on Brief Visits Here

"Hello there, boys. How are you?"

It was Governor Myers Y. Cooper speaking just before entering his car about 9:30 this morning in front of Hotel Harding, where he had stopped for a brief rest.

"All right," city officials answered from the second story windows of the city hall.

"What are you doing, over there?" the governor asked.

"Looking at you," came the reply.

"Well, that's a pretty hard job to do," said the governor as he entered the car. "I'm glad to see you boys."

The governor's stop in Marion was very brief. No one at the hotel obtained information regarding the destination of his trip.

In a battle for fifth place, Oak street downed Glenwood in eight innings, 7 to 5. ...s princess in... ...even to acknowledge her guilt suffered imprisonment for 22 years. Only with the death of the Queen of Frederick III in 1685 was she released.

After 30 years, the Swedish army United, betrayed the Swedish king was accused of high treason, condemned to death, his property confiscated, his family and his descendants exiled from Denmark and a price put upon his head.

The fair Leonora journeys to England hoping to receive a sum of money borrowed by her cousin Charles II while he was wandering around Europe. When her errand became known Charles outwardly sympathizing, wrote to the Danish king that she was in England. When the Danish government demanded her extradition he publicly refused and secretly caused her arrest as she was taking ship at Dover. Still refusing to be separated from her husband she was imprisoned in the Blue Tower of the Royal Castle and her 22 years of suffering began. With the accession to the throne of Christian V in 1670 a few privileges were given her, the king would gladly have released her but his implacable German mother's will was stronger than his.

Although Leonora wrote much during the imprisonment it is through her hymns and sacred poems that she is best known.

Count Ulfeldt died in exile in 1664 but an effigy he was hanged drawn, quartered and beheaded in the market place of Copenhagen which the Blue Tower overlooked all the details of the horror being carefully described to the imprisoned countess.

"White Narcissus," a New Novel

"WHITE NARCISSUS" by Raymond Kuister. The novel will be published simultaneously in England Canada and the United States. The reader is held by the mystery us spell which seems to brood over the Lethen house and its inmates this atmosphere is symbolized by the white narcissus which obsesses the thoughts of Mrs. Lethen and which fills the silent rooms with its deathlike perfume. It is reflected in the serious introspective prose in the hint of madness in the air in the somber tones of the landscape and in the master plot of dark moods and forces. And throughout the strange beauty of the story is revealed in the love of Richard Milne and Ada Lethen.

In a series of swift scenes set sometimes against a background of business and social life in New York City and sometimes on the shores of an isolated Canadian lake the dramatic history unfolds. Effectively sharply the author carves out the fateful circle of Nikolas experiences a circle which leads inevitably to the final terrifying climax.

What I know about nice women"

Listen to a doctor whose practice includes hundreds of the better class. "It is simply unbelievable," he says, "how many women—supposedly nice, fastidious women—are suffering from halitosis and utterly ignorant of the fact. No wonder their husbands no longer kiss them, or that women friends avoid them."

Don't fool yourself

Be the first to suspect yourself of having halitosis (bad breath). So many everyday conditions cause it that it is folly for any one to assume complete freedom from it. Defective teeth for example. Fermenting food particles. Pyorrhea. Germ infections of the mouth. Keep yourself on the popular side by gargling with full strength Listerine morning and night, and before meeting others. Listerine instantly ends halitosis.

Destroys odors—kills germs

Being a safe germicide so active it kills even Staphylococcus Aureus (pus) and Bacillus Typhosus (typhoid) germs in 15 seconds, it naturally combats germ conditions which cause odors. Then, being a powerful deodorant, it destroys the odors themselves. Send for our free Book of Etiquette. Dept. H 6, Lambert Pharmacal Company, St. Louis, Mo., U. S. A.

It's not so very difficult for those acquainted with English cigars to understand why General Dawes totes his pipe to dinner parties.

The razing of fourteen of the government hotels on the Union Station plaza in Washington has been inaugurated, and soon visitors to the capital will have no occasion to wonder why the plaza has the appearance of an old encampment with its temporary barracks permanently abandoned.

It develops that John D. Rockefeller, Jr., is the donor of a $200,000 carillon of sixty-four bells soon to be delivered to the University of Chicago. Possibly Mr. Rockefeller figures that it will take sixty-four to drown out the rattle of the gangsters' gunfire.

The French government has struck a medal in honor of the late Myron T. Herrick. It's something of a coincidence that the only two Americans in whose honor medals have been struck by France—Lindbergh and Herrick—were so closely associated from the time of the former's epochal flight to Paris up to the time of the death of the latter.

It's not so surprising to learn that Switzerland leads the world in the matter of per capita wealth, but there is occasion for surprise in the showing that New Zealand comes next to the Swiss per capita of $3,126 with $3,029, while the United States trails in third position with $2,908.

Even though he retains the managing directorship of the Manchester Guardian, of which he has been editor and managing director since 1872, we very gravely fear that C. P. Scott has made a grave mistake in naming his son to succeed him as editor. What right has any editor to cut himself off from communication with his readers after such a mere trifle in the flight of time as fifty-seven years?

It pays occasionally to cast your bread upon the waters. A man out in Anderson, Indiana, who financially befriended in Indianapolis a stranger whose pockets had been picked, is now the owner of 360 acres of coal lands in Canada willed to him by the stranger.

The London Evening News is greatly worked up over the story that the United States is planning to erect a barbed-wire fence along the Canadian border to keep out rum-runners. It is greatly to be feared that our British cousins will never be able to recognize what passes for humor over here in these Volsteadian times.

A New York story says that cheaper diamonds are not likely as a result of the recent discovery in South Africa owing to the reason that the new diamond territory has proved to be of small extent. Just as though the supply would make any difference in prices so long as the diamond trust has safety vaults in which to hold the stones and regulate the flow to the market!

American Tourists Dodging Paris.

Despite the fact that the American exodus to Europe thus far this season has been greater than that of the same period in any preceding year, the French aren't happy over the outlook for tourist trade. Paris had a wretched season in respect to tourist trade last winter, and the outlook is said to be worse for the present summer season. And what is true of Paris is true, as well, of all the other of the larger population centers of France and the French resorts. There is more or less gloom in all of them, but especially in Paris, where fifty new hotels have been opened recently for business with little, if any, expected additional business developing.

The French official tourist agency explains the situation by saying: "The indications are that American tourists this year are showing a preference for England and Germany. It is true that these countries are spending millions in propaganda and have abolished the vexatious laws which irritate American tourists visiting France."

The Paris hotel people are demanding the abolishment of the landing and sailing charges and the luxury tax, under which the traveler pays from five to eighteen per cent. on his bill, but it is just probable that the hotel people themselves are in large part to blame, for hotel rates both for lodging and board have been going up by leaps and bounds. They doubled between 1923 and 1925 and today are close to twice as high as they were in the latter year.

No matter what the cause, it is evident that thousands of American vacationers in Europe are dodging Paris, or using it only as a connecting point in travel to some other land, which is to be regretted, for they thus miss the beauties of one of the most fascinating of all the world's cities.

Greatest Detective of All Time.

In itself, the London announcement of the resignation, after forty-two years of active service, of Frederick Wensley as chief of the criminal intelligence division of Scotland Yard would hardly have attracted more than passing attention, despite the fact that he has been called "the greatest detective of all time." However, coupled with the statement that he has been invited to come to this country and resume his calling in Chicago, the announcement naturally takes on added interest.

Police Commissioner Russell, of Chicago, denies that any proposition has been made through official channels to the former Scotland Yard divisional chief, and both Dean John H. Wigmore, of the Northwestern university law school, and Professor Leonard D. White, of the University of Chicago school of police administration, have said that their schools contemplate no offer to Wensley. Yet there may be foundation for the London report as there is a citizens' association in the Windy City which is doing its utmost to remove the criminal stain which for years has blackened the reputation of their community. It is just possible that this association, or some similar organization, has approached this veteran detective of sixty-four who is now at liberty to accept employment here in the United States.

Commissioner Russell it may be said in passing, adds humor to the situation by setting out that the Chicago police department is not in need of the Briton's services, having his statement upon his expressed belief that it already has in its membership the greatest detectives of all time.

No matter what former Chief Constable Wensley's ability may be compared with that of detectives of the present and the past, there can be no question that his is a remarkable record. He is credited with the solution of more murder mysteries than any living man. It was as a tribute to his record in this regard and as a compliment to him that the post of chief constable was created, and now that he has resigned it will be abolished and control of the division will revert back to the five area superintendents, known as the "Big Five."

"In real life," says a London cable, "Chief Constable Wensley's work often shamed the amateur exploits of the detective of fiction. A big armchair on the second floor of the Scotland Yard building overlooking the sluggish Thames, half a block from the House of Parliament, was where most of his murder mysteries were solved. He would sit for hours at a time staring out at the river while studying every angle of the case in hand, and if any one disturbed him—well, no one ever did. When he left his armchair things began to happen.

"His most recent case was in bringing to book Sergeant Goddard, one of his associates in justice, for bribery in connection with West End night club life.

"One of his most noted exploits was the case of the mystery house of Regent's park. He traced a missing woman to the eerie house and found that one Maltby, a tailor, had been living for weeks behind barricaded doors alone with the body of the woman he had killed.

"One of his most astute solutions was in the murder of Madame Gerard, which he solved with only two clues to work on, a laundry mark and a piece of paper with cryptic words."

Just what a detective who works along this line could accomplish in Chicago is problematical. Chicago murders and London's are hardly as alike as two peas in a pod. There is little mystery about the Chicago variety, where the gangster slayings are pulled off in the city's streets, in daylight hours as well as at night, without even an attempt at disguise or concealment.

At this distance it would seem that Chicagoans could far more profitably get Mr. Mussolini to loan them the officer who cleaned up Sicily. He is the kind of a man needed to meet the situation in Chicago, and he would probably fail to prove effective, unless, as in Italy, he had honest and courageous court and police department backing and support.

The Association Opposed to Prohibition claims that ninety per cent of the Canadian rum output, valued at $30,000,000, was smuggled into this country. Why does it not finish the thing in style by stating that dry Americans went to Canada to drink up the other ten per cent?

The Dollar Steamship and the Goodyear-Zeppelin companies are said to be planning both transpacific and transatlantic dirigible services to carry passengers, mail and light freight. Good luck to them, but it may be good policy to try out the latter thoroughly before attempting the former. There's an awful lot of water between the Golden Gate and the coast of Japan.

A Parisian society woman has acquired leprosy from a fur coat, the kolinsky skins for which her husband purchased from a Russian refugee. Usually the greatest trouble the girls experience is in paying for their fur coats before wearing them out.

A New Yorker, who has been making $100 a day by operating a fake beggars' syndicate, has been sentenced to three years in prison for forcing his seven-year-old son to take being a cripple and beg. Those New York courts long have shown an inclination to be unduly lenient with offenders.

So badly is the Karamea region of New Zealand devastated by landslides, upheavals and depressions following the earthquake of June 17, that the first message to come out of the stricken territory last Tuesday was to the effect that the entire region will have to be abandoned by the inhabitants. How puny, at the utmost, are the disturbances caused by man compared with the awful convulsions of nature.

Diet in Rheumatic Cases.

BY ROYAL S. COPELAND, M. D.

Inflammation of a joint is known as arthritis. There are several types of the disease. I want to speak particularly about "arthritis deformans." This is sometimes called "rheumatoid arthritis."

In this disease there is deformity and crippling of the joints. The fingers are twisted out of shape and other joints of the body may be stiff and deformed.

In general I am not much impressed by heredity as a factor in disease. The fact is, I don't want to believe that heredity is a matter of tremendous importance. My soul rebels against a man's being crippled or fettered because his father was. It must be admitted, however, that this form of arthritis appears to run in families.

As we become more familiar with the chemistry of the body it is very likely we will know a lot more about the causes of disease than we do today. We will know why it is that there must be maintained in the body what we may call the chemical balance. The lime and phosphorus and iron are required in certain proportions in order that they may do team work, if I may put it that way. Anything that interferes with the body chemistry lowers the vitality and leaves the individual the ready victim of disease. Perhaps it will be be found that the body laboratory of the son is apt to be like the body laboratory of the father. If this is the case science will tell us some time in the future how to correct the evil and in this way defeat what are now the predestined effects of heredity.

Anything that lowers the vitality prepares the way for an inflammation of any part of the body. Physical or mental overwork is a factor. Working under conditions of bad sanitation can not be disregarded.

We have the feeling that the men should carry the heavy burdens of life. As a matter of fact, they do not. This disease, for instance, is more likely to attack women than it is men. It may be that frequent child-bearing is a factor.

Almost invariably a local center of infection is to be found somewhere in the body. It may be in the gums or in the teeth. It may be in the tonsils or in the gall bladder. Even with strict search, however, it is frequently difficult to locate the exact cause.

In the acute form it comes on something like rheumatism. There may be swelling, redness and pain in one or more joints. But almost always it is the small joints of the hands, and sometimes of the neck or jaw, which are affected.

The acute symptoms disappear, but it will be discovered that there is stiffness and creaking of the joints on movement. Then comes on the deformity which characterizes the disease.

The treatment of arthritis deformans is not very satisfactory. I shall leave that for you to discuss with your physician.

There is a popular idea that in all rheumatic troubles there should be a restriction in the eating of meat. I can see no advantage of any such restriction in arthritis deformans. As a matter of fact, it is a mistake to restrict the diet so much as to impair the strength and vigor. Many times it will be found the patient is actually anemic from lack of proper food. Generous feeding is more likely to be helpful than otherwise.

Editorial Opinion.

THE KING COMES HOME.

There are, perhaps, very many Americans wholly incapable of understanding the ardor and enthusiasm of the welcome King George received from his people upon his return to official estate in his capital of London. But though the British sovereign has extremely limited powers in any concrete expression, he in fact is the mightiest ruler of empire on the face of the earth. It is the tradition of the sovereign which really holds together the wide dependencies of the realm: it is as strong in Canada and New Zealand as it is in the British Isles. The king represents the genius, aspirations and achievements of the empire. In his person reposes the law; and the law is as puissant in South Africa as it is in Australia or in the islands of the sea which are shadowed by the British flag.

This feeling of reverence and loyalty for the king is rooted in the thought and national progress of a thousand years. It resents criticism though the subjects of the British monarch are probably the most truly democratic on the face of the earth.

The king does not die. Hence George V is as sacrosanct a monarch today as was the Lion Heart in his day, perhaps more so.

And so when King George the other day came riding home after his long, weary, dangerous months of illness and suffering, his people gave him such a welcome as seldom has been accorded to major heroes of the realm. He was coming home from near the gates of death, coming renewed in health and vigor. The people cheered; they wept; they gave vast evidence of the sincerity of their admiration for his person and their gratitude for his return.

It is this feeling on the part of the English people which wields the empire in surpassing solidity. In this respect the shadow, so to speak, is of vaster importance than the substance of authority. The feeling is deep rooted. It will be long in departing from English hearts, if ever. It is something akin to the attitude of the religious devotee to personified ideals of his faith. It makes for strength. In England it makes for the preservation of human liberty, the stability of Christian civilization.

The quiet, unassuming gentleman, who abides betimes in Buckingham palace, in a very true sense possesses a rare influence over the destinies of the millions who own themselves his subjects. —Cincinnati Enquirer.

HE'S NOT TALKING POLITICS NOW.

Not very much more than a year ago, former Governor Frank O. Lowden metaphorically shook the dust off his feet as a testimony against the Kansas City convention because it would not commit the Republican party to the equalization fee feature of the McNary-Haugen bill. He said in effect that he wouldn't take a presidential nomination from such a gathering.

But delivering an address in Milwaukee the other day at the thirteenth annual convention of the Kiwanis International, Mr. Lowden manifested a rather different state of mind. He said that a new public attitude toward agriculture and the frank recognition of facts regarding the agriculture situation are needed more than any one piece of legislation in order to bring justice to the farmer.

The former governor mentioned a number of things he believes ought to be done. He suggested more equitable tax laws. He warned of soil depletion and talked of tax exemption in that connection. He spoke of the necessity for better schools in rural districts, and he urged an inventory of the nation's agricultural resources. But nowhere, as far as reports indicate, did Mr. Lowden mention the equalization fee or its successor the debenture plan. Apparently that sort of thing was not on his mind at all.

Evidently, even among people of high type the relative importance to a general subject of this thing or that, may depend upon whether it is being considered from the political standpoint or from the standpoint of common sense and good business.—Detroit Free Press.

Twenty Years Ago.

It was Monday, July 5.

The 300th anniversary of the discovery of Lake Champlain was being celebrated.

The Star stated that there was an increased attendance, the day before at Garfield park, at the second of the free band concerts being given by it for the entertainment of the people of Marion.

The Star told of the payment, the day before, of the last note of $3,500 and the freeing of the First Baptist church of debt.

Statistics showed that forty-four had been killed and 2,361 injured in celebrating the Fourth, the day before.

Edward Trott fell from a Hocking Valley train and broke a bone in his right heel.

Zmich outpitched Hughes and Marion beat Mansfield, four to three.

A daughter was born to Mr. and Mrs. Levi Cornwell, of north Main street.

Captain Harry M. Dombaugh resigned from the navy.

David McClain, fifty, had his skull fractured in a fight with his son-in-law, Charles Bradford.

The Riviera.

BY TEMPLE MANNING.

Let the most conservative American but approach the Mediterranean and he begins to talk about Monte Carlo. He may never have followed Beale Dame Fortune—perhaps he opposed to gambling—but let Monte Carlo be but mentioned and he begins to wonder if he can't "click" the croupier at the Casino for enough to buy "baby" those proverbially necessary "new shoes."

And so I know—and I am casting no reflections—that you, my readers, are anxious to embark again and set forth from Gibraltar, where you probably were asked to pay heavily for your souvenirs, for the Riviera.

Riviera! Magic name! Its mere sound makes one want to close one's eyes in dreamy fashion. But this will never do!

The Riviera, as the name implies, is that rim which extends from the Mediterranean back to the Maritime Alps. The heart of the Riviera are those few miles between Cannes and Mentone, in France. There is, however, a stretch of seacoast which is called the Italian Riviera. This is really an extension of the French Riviera, with which we are now concerned.

Viewed from along the Riviera, particularly, the Mediterranean sea and the sky above have an exquisite azure color. Because of this, the district is often called the Azure coast, or "Cote d'Azure." It has been a favorite "locus" for romantic literature.

Although Monte Carlo may be said to be the drawing card of the Riviera, the city of Nice is the real center of fashion and gaiety. This city, which normally has a population of around 100,000, entertains thousands more during the "season," which starts in January and lasts until just after Easter. Its delightful climate is due not only to the temperate Mediterranean, but to the fact that to the north, Nice is circled by hills, which protect it from the northern winds and all but the most severe winter storms.

Monte Carlo, a few miles east, needs no introduction. You all know that it is a part of the principality of Monaco, which, in turn, is completely supported by the earnings of Monte Carlo's Casino, where only travelers and tourists may gamble.—Copyright, 1929, Newspaper Feature Service, Inc.

New York Day by Day.

New York, July 5 — Thoughts while strolling: That locust-like drone from the subway gratings. And the sibilous hello who goes about with a red handkerchief hanging from his cuff. Hachi-hachi, the new Jap game. Sounds like a sneeze. The "atmosphere" cafes specializing in trimming the visiting yap.

A faded picture of Anna Held in a curio shop window. Flappers with long hair and fresh roses entwined in the knots. Tombstone maker's sign: "Monumentalist." Every body stops to watch a fellow carry a chair across the street. Broadway is the spot for —east they wear 'em, west they don't.

The disgust a traffic cop can put in his "go ahead!" Gaudily-painted ice-cream carts racing to public parks. The scar-faced pug with who trots about with a beautiful pair of wire police dogs. Amelia Earhart, the female Lindy. Trembling old men who mutter at zipping autos.

George Jean Nathan's hair always has the tousle of just getting up. Boys who wear ten bracelets like Noel Coward. The restaurant where Adolphe Menjou used to work. Those mannikins with golden white hair, jet black eyebrows and pantherine strides.

Wonder if Fannie Hurst ever sits any place in a theater but a stage box. The well-dressed couple who stroll about apartment-house districts with a hurdy-gurdy. August Heckscher, the lively eighty-one-year-old millionaire. The full-blooded Indian doorman. Those "red tail carpets"—won't show stains.

Rupert Hughes, a Lancaster, Missouri, boy who made good in the city. Dried-up spare men who light red lanterns around building excavations. And sit around the rest of the evening on a neighboring fire plug smoking a pipe. Mary Alice Eads, better known as Peggy Hoyt, the dressmaker.

Dandies who wear daisies in their buttonholes. And twirl canes along the avenue. What became of Charles Levine? Complete characterizer: A society boy known as Freddie. Mrs. Peter Dureea who was once Viola Allen. And there's Mr. Zero, the Broadway philanthropist.

Gotham used to have many cafes where writers and artists were favored guests, but they are gone. The most celebrated perhaps was the James Francis tavern in the Thirties. On the walls of its tap room were some of the excellent work of Ernest Lawson, Robert Henri, and George Luks. Francis, an eccentric fellow, never refused to buy the painting of a newcomer and his collection today, were it not scattered, would rate a fortune. It was a rule at his tavern that any writer or artist caught paying a check was banished for a month. And few went into exile.

In the office of a famous New York executive is a wall sign reading: "I would rather have one employe of unswerving loyalty than three of extraordinary genius."

Sounds swell. But many of us observe that if the genius does not eventually own the firm he steps out and owns another while the loyal employe is pensioned at sixty—with half pay and best wishes.

We often wonder if this metropolitan gurgling about week-ends in the country is not a form of hysteria. I have never been a week-end guest without a dose of disgusting weather. All I have to do is look up a train for Dandruff-on-the-Knob or some other rural retreat and a cloudburst descends. It takes ten days in town to dry out from a week-end trip.

There comes a kind of glow in the heart to read that Colonel Stewart, until recently chairman of the board of the Standard Oil Company of Indiana, has given Coe college, Cedar Rapids, Iowa, $200,000 with which to build a library in honor of his father and mother. Colonel Stewart is not a young man, in fact it was more than forty years ago that he was graduated from this same college.

It is a fine and inspiring thing to find that a man has within him the continuing disposition to do honor to his parents, to keep alight the candle of remembrance. Few of us can build libraries. All of us can do something to show that love and remembrance of our fathers and mothers are not dead within us.

The editor of a paper in London says that if he were to write a book on his return to England he would entitle it: "I Believe in America." He says he has not heard one discourteous word over here and that he has been greeted with a smile.

That's a pleasant word. So many who come back from Europe tells us that folks over there don't like Americans. Perhaps that is partly the fault of the travelers, but that is not the whole answer. At any rate, one can hear discourteous words about Americans in both London and Paris, so travelers say. To have a man of keen powers of observation say that he has not heard a single discourteous word and suggest for the title of a book "I Believe in America," is a kind of pat on the shoulder that is a real tribute to this country.

Some of the fine points of civilization some of its luxuries, some possibilities of comfort and happiness, we in this country have yet to learn. Consider the town of Nancy in France. Over there they have passed a curfew law aimed at saxophones. Nobody may play a saxophone after 10 p. m. What could be sweeter than a curfew like that?

One reads a little item to the effect that Frank C. Batchelder, vice president of the Baltimore & Ohio railroad and president of the Chicago Terminal company, retires this month. One notes he began his career as a telegraph operator. He began at a monthly salary that doubtless would be scorned as a weekly salary by most young men today.

This item about the vice president of a great railway company is only one of many. They are in the papers right along. And yet the chances for success in the earlier days of industry were less than now. Today with our amazing industrial development the young man faces wide fields of activity unknown to his father.

The chances for success are greater than ever. Are the boys as good as ever? Most of us, remembering our youth, think today's boys are better.

CLEVELAND FLIERS NEAR FLIGHT MARK

Aviators Fight Storms Over Airport in Effort To Set New Record

den and Frank Wise were in his hands at the moment Basham had to act quickly, but he had no landing lights on the plane nor did he carry flares which might enable him to pick out an emergency landing field He then proved his mastery of aircraft by bringing the plane to an almost perfect landing on a strange field

Basham and his aides wheeled the plane against a tree to keep the storm from blowing it away When the rain had subsided they rolled it out on the field and Basham tried to take off but the field was too small and he crashed

Runs Into Fence

He ran into a wire fence tearing off the left undercarriage and careened against a cinderbank on the Baltimore and Ohio right of way damaging the motor and twisting the propeller out of shape

Fortunately for he there the City of Cleveland had a full load of gasoline 135 gallons when its tender ship crashed up Otherwise the flight might have to mounted before now

Otto Leiss president of the Stewart Aircraft Co sponsor of the flight immediately leased another Stinson Detroiter monoplane from a neighboring aircraft company Mechanics worked through the entire night transferring the fuel storage tank and hose from the wrecked plane to the fresh one, and just before dawn completed their task

The new refueling plane went into service for the first time shortly before 7 a m when Basham and his crew took off with 80 gallons of gasoline They returned 15 minutes later reporting that the contact had been made without a hitch They also reported that the endurance plane motor sounded mighty good

Tank Caves In

Prior to the storm the success of the endurance flight was first endangered when the main storage tank of the refueling ship caved in in mid air In draining the gas to the endurance plane, an air vent in the storage tank must be kept open William Ody Brook park deputy marshal who was flying with the refueler in place of a mechanic put his hand over the vent without knowing of the consequences The air supply cut off suction from the draining hose was so great as to draw in the sides of the tank It was not seriously damaged however

Ernie Basham in an interview, described his battle with the storm as follows

The weather bureau had advised us of an approaching storm but the endurance planes gas supply was getting low so we had to get them more fuel before the storm broke

We first tried to lower them a bag containing supplies but with the storm approaching so rapidly, we found we were losing time

The boys drew up the bag and sent down a load of gas which was much more important at the moment The air was bumpy but finally we got a full load of gas aboard the other plane

Storm Closes In

Dodging rain and lightning we next transferred one bag of fuel oil and food Going back for contact with the second bag, however, the storm closed in on us

We headed for the airport while the endurance plane shot away in the direction of Akron The storm soon became impossible to navigate and I noticed my motor was missing

A flash of lightning enabled me to pick out a field and we came down At this stage the plane was not injured I sent a note back to the airport by a farmer boy saying that we had come down all right

My two aides got out while I tried to take off When two feet off the ground my motor began to miss badly About then my left undercarriage struck a fence post

I pulled the nose high and the plane banged against a cinder bank The propeller was bent the under carriage washed out and the motor mount wrecked

Finally Sight Plane

Neither of my helpers nor I was injured in the least, and the accident will not interfere with the flight because we have obtained a new plane and fitted it with refueling equipment

Wrecking of the refueler gave the backers of the flight their first shock but it was mild compared with their fears for the endurance plane which had not been heard nor seen for 17 minutes during the height of the storm A great shout went up from the field when finally it returned and resumed its monotonous circling of the airport

The first message dropped today by the endurance plane contained a laconic statement by Newcomb about the bad weather encountered during the night It read:

"Give us 100 gallons of gasoline at 6 30 Last night was hell"

Ernie Basham left the airport at 9 o'clock for his home. He hoped to get a few hours' sleep before the next refueling scheduled for about noon Basham had been on duty through the night, helping with the conditioning of the new refueler.

Sea of Mud

The airport was a sea of mud starting at 8 o'clock last night rain had been falling steadily for 12 hours. It stopped during the forenoon, but the field was so soggy it was unsafe for planes to land.

Pilots and mechanics went about their duties on the field, wearing hip boots, and it was all they could do to keep the hangars clear of water.

A typical landscape in the rich Quebec dairy country—long noted for its fine cheese

A wonderful table delicacy arrives from Canada

it's "Chateau"

the new delicious CHEESE FOOD

AND now once more our Canadian cousins have demonstrated their remarkable ability as cheese makers! Long renowned as makers of fine cheese—adepts for example at producing a Cheddar which epicures—the world over—have savored and praised Yet, now they have created a cheese delicacy entirely new both in flavor and food value

For in "Chateau" they have not merely captured the indescribable ripened flavor of rare Cheddar By adding an extra amount of cream they have given 'Chateau" a luscious full cream richness that sets it apart from other cheeses They have produced in 'Chateau more than cheese—a new cheese food!

You probably know already that it spreads as easily as butter Cuts trimly Melts readily and completely in all kinds of cheese dishes Chateau for example makes the best melt in your mouth cheese sandwich that you have ever tasted Toasted or not, on white bread, whole wheat, or spread upon crackers 'Chateau is different and delicious Cooked—it can be served in dozens of ways It gives a new dignity to that fine old standby macaroni and cheese 'Chateau' welsh rarebit is as smooth as cream itself—never stringy never hard The clever American hostesses all over the country who literally discovered this food, are serving Chateau —spreading the glad news of its indescribable flavor, its quick and economical adaptabilities to a wide variety of those different dishes

You'll want to try it too Remember to ask for Chateau —by name —at your grocer's today

Salads Love Company

Most salads are the better for a little savory—to use the old English expression Surprise the family tonight—and the salad too—with these luscious toasted 'Chateau' rolls

Cut fresh bread in very thin slices and remove crusts Cream together equal parts butter and Chateau ' Season with salt and paprika and spread on the bread Now roll slices separately and toast under gas broiler Serve hot with salad

'Chateau' is a regular part of the menu at the Chateau Frontenac Quebec—celebrated for its fine cuisine

CHURCH WOMEN IN NATIONAL COUNCIL

Mrs. James Ferguson of Kansas City First President of Organization

BOSTON, July 5 — With Mrs. James Ferguson, of Kansas City, Missouri, as its first president, the National Council of Federated Church Women was formed here. The newly formed organization will include the Council of Federations of Women's Church Societies, a New England organization including 11 federations in Maine, Rhode Island, and Massachusetts.

Beside Mrs. Ferguson, other officers designated were Mrs. Irving L. Walker, of Buffalo, N. Y., as secretary, and Mrs. Richard D. Blair, of Detroit, Mich., as treasurer.

While including the New England group, the newly formed organization in turn will be subsidiary to the National Commission of Protestant Women, which includes also women's foreign and home missionary societies of all denominations, according to Mrs. Grace Coleman Lathrop, president of the Council of Federations of Women's Church Societies.

This represented a significant merger of the activities of 1300 groups of women throughout the United States. In the churches represented by these organizations there are 20,000,000 church women who began to co-operate not only in missionary activities, but in all their church work, Mrs. Lathrop said.

"The church must enlarge its horizon or perish, and church women must enlarge their horizons or fail," Mrs. Lathrop stated.

Sun-Tan Fad and Backless Dresses Fail to Win Style Popularity Expected Here

Marion Women and Girls Find Artist's Touch Needed To Apply Makeup

BY HALLIE HOUCK
Marion Star Staff Writer

SUN-TAN, for all its ballyhoo via cosmetics and women's apparel ads, isn't the rage in Marion that was anticipated. Nor that the idea isn't selling good. It is. But not with the fervor that the merchants hoped for.

As the days grow warmer, of course, more people think about having sun tan coloring but even these don't need special delivery motives downtown for makeup. One woman in a party the other night was willing to part with her box of powder, giving the stuff up as a bad job. Another, in the same crowd, was enthusiastic over its possibilities. According to both, it was the art of making whether or not you were satisfied with the result.

Difficult Situation

What woman lives who can decide between the subtle tales of Gypsy Love, French Nude, Palm Beach Tan, Desert Tan, Sun Tan, Sun Glow, Outdoor, Sunbeam, Arabian and Cuban art and when the Parisienne of fashion is over, settle down to apply these tantalizing colors to her face?

It takes a real artist to apply creams. Unless art products so tint a close observer can't tell the result from a day or two at the beach. Many of the women put on a lighter foundation cream and the result is unnatural. Others dab on cream as an uneven coverage and the makeup is patchy. Still other women fail to let any foundation on, and by the time they've walked a block in the wind, there's nothing to tell of their trouble.

Finally Pass It Up

Most of the women have given up in despair after having been the laughing stock of their friends about three nights in succession.

When backless sports dresses were first given advance notices in the fashion world, everyone thought that Marion would surely take up the idea.

But Marion hasn't. The buyers have ordered but few dresses of this type, and although these have sold, the merchants are wary of buying more.

One woman gave as her reason for buying a sun-tan back sports dress, that she didn't want a high tanned line on her back when she dressed for evening.

Young girls can get away with a fad of this kind, but the old girls know that they look like February in September Morn's bathing suit, and let the stuff alone.

Some Overdo It

Even these youngsters sometimes spread the coloring too thick and cut the necks too low. Recently one of the town's fair ones wasn't presentable a half block away. She really looked as if some one had given her a coat of deepest indian, and with her perfect face was wearing white, was not at all with clear distinction.

One in a while you hear a woman say that she uses her makeup for suntan effects, but these women are few and far between.

As the Akron beauty specialists said, "After all it's only a fad and will be popular among only a few and for a short time with the women."

Cats, Minus Tails, Find Heavy Demand

LONDON—Manx cats long ago lost their tails, and now the Isle of Man, the island midway between England and Ireland where the Manx cats come from, is in danger of losing its cats.

So great is the demand for Manx cats that it is suggested legislation may be necessary to prevent them from being taken out of the island.

Each year the number of Manx cats left on the island dwindles. Americans are said to be the keenest collectors. They frequently take away kittens for their friends back home.

Hazing Is Dropped at U. of Georgia

ATLANTA—University of Georgia freshmen will not be hazed next year as was voted by the student body recently, but they must continue to get along without the wearing of knickers and must not enter pool rooms.

Plan Merger of Great Lakes Fleets

CLEVELAND—Plans to consolidate 17 independent fleets on the Great Lakes into one huge fleet have been announced by Otis and Company. Notice of the proposal has been sent to the 17 owners and the Otis Company has said that $40,000,000 will be offered for 115 ships.

How to Banish Ink Spots and Stains

When you get ink spots and other stains on your hands which resist the action of soap and water, here is a simple and efficient method of removing them. Get some Perazine powder from your drug store. Sprinkle a little on a wet cloth and rub gently over the offending spots. They will vanish almost instantly.—Adv.

But if I am willing the woman answered smiling to take such a desperate gamble * * *

"Question is"—Lance left his chair as if sensitive of being at some disadvantage as long as he remained in it with June standing over him—"ought I to let you.

Would a man truly in love with you let you chuck a fortune to the dogs simply to marry him—especially if he realized he wasn't much account and stood a slim chance of ever being able to make it up to you——"

Except June gently interrupted by loving me truly all my life long.

Except he agreed if with deprecation in tone and gesture by loving you truly all your life long dear. That wouldn't be a hard promise for any man to keep. But I'm wondering if love is enough.

His arms went out to take her again, but a hand that lightly fell upon his bosom held him off. "Who is to be the best judge of that? you Lance or the woman who loves you? — he woman to whom your love is everything.

But is love ever enough? I mean love alone" he doggedly argued. "The way I see it a fellow's got to be able to give his wife a life worth living as well as love if their marriage is to be anything like a fair bargain.

Really Lance!"—the laugh had a conscious ring— "why are you letting me find out so late you're such a philosopher?

A graphic hand dealt with that quibble. Until I've proved my ability to give you the sort of a life you've got to have to be happy what right have I to let you——"

None. The answer fell with dashing firmness. "You're got no rights with me Lance but those I give—not even the right to refuse, if you really love me, what I choose to give you."

If I truly love you" he echoed in confusion. "Why do you keep harping on that string.

Don't you know it's because you're puzzling me a little dear? When I tell you I've made up my mind to do away with the one obstacle to our marriage, you raise every objection you can think of—and none that ought to matter in the least with two people in love. What do you want me to think if not that you're not so keen about marrying as you were a while ago?

I'm only trying to think of you before myself.

No —the arm grew stiff to hold him off but June's smile was vague with sadness— this isn't the time for that, Lance. I can't think straight with you kissing me. And I've got to think things out now dear and you've got to help me—I've got to know just what you are thinking.

"That's easy" he sullenly protested "merely that you oughtn't to do anything so serious in such haste.

You began to make me think you may be right.

He had the grace to wince. "June."

But she shook her head. The only excuse of our madness Lance was that it was madness. I suppose that's why it's been so sweet. But if we are going to start now being sensible * * *

If not for want of a fair retort or else to save a guilty face there seemed little excuse for the show of exasperation with which Fairless flung away.

That damned waiter" he growled over the table— I told him to serve the cocktails right away.

June offered no sympathy indeed had hardly heard and the wretched silence that consumed began to spin was arrested with violence by a cackle of the telephone.

What's that? Fairless cried with a jump that faced him about scowling at the source of that impertinence. "Can't be for us * * *

I expect it's for me. June said and without other explanation went to answer the call.

Astonished and distrustful the man crept glowering watch on her. Yes he heard her say. Please * * * Mr. Remington it is I.

Nothing to be gathered from her expression the countenance she wore to the telephone was one that might have been put on for a casual acquaintance as here of clues to June's.

Thank you she said presently. Yes very much * * * Oh quite * * *

I will let you know when I have read your letter tomorrow and consulted my adviser. Till then please do nothing.

Thank you again Mr. Remington. Good night.

When she replaced the receiver on its hook she stood over the instrument so long in thought that Lance's patience ran out.

Well he demanded almost roughly.

It was another June who turned to him a woman alarmed and wistful. They've found him she faltered. At last. He's living in I think they said 40th street with a woman an actress named Charles—or something that sounded like that.

You weren't interested enough in that minor detail to make sure.

What difference does her name make? If it's true * * * I was too stunned to think it mattered. It didn't seem possible * * * Tabor! * * * I can't help thinking there must be some mistake.

You sound" Lance sneered "as if you hoped there was.

June gave a slight yet decided nod. I do, almost. I didn't love him ever but I did like him until I met you dear and even after that even when I came to hate him for standing between us I still had to respect him.

Touching! Tabor ought to know about it.

Don't be cheap Lance. There aren't many decent men in the world —at least not in ours.

"Are you still talking about the man who left you to take up with a trollop.

That's just it. I can't believe he really did. I can't understand his doing anything like that unless * * *

Unless what?

I'm afraid June groped in deepening dismay, if it's true it means— he knew.

Knew?

About us—

Don't be silly. How could he?

I don't know. But I can't forget he disappeared that every day * * * the first time Lance.

She went to him suddenly, like a frightened child forgetting everything else in the feeling that he was all she had to hold to.

There! Fairless soothed her— nothing to carry on about if Tabor does know. It only goes to show you were wrong about him he was common clay after all.

No" the woman muttered to his breast.

What! you called me 'cheap' a minute ago and that had stung, and rankled but what price your godly helpmate now? He didn't waste much time did he?—assuming you're right he did find out somehow—stepping out to get a bit of his own back!

I can't believe it. June drearily insisted. Even if all the rest is true even if Tabor is living with some woman it's for another reason.

Kindness of heart d'you mean? Fairless could hardly have suspected how he was betraying himself.

Making it easy for you to get your decree on statutory grounds.

Making it impossible you mean. How.

Don't you see whether he did it on purpose or no, he's made it impossible for me to sue on the only grounds I can honestly allege.

Even more blankly Fairless asked. How d'you mean.

How can you be so stupid. June stirred as if impatient to be released, but his arms were obstinate.

To win on such grounds I'd have to go before the court with clean hands—Tabor if he knows anything knows that. If he really has done this thing they say it's because he's determined not to let a divorce happen in the history of his family.

It's that he's thinking of the honor of the Wynnes. It means more to him than anything and he'd sacrifice anything rather than let me drag his name through the dirt of divorce proceedings.

He knows I won't use his entering a countersuit and naming you as corespondent. He knows you can't afford it and there isn't anything you wouldn't do to prevent my exposing you to the danger of that."

Then you've changed your mind already I take it. Fairless said in what seemed an effort to be lightly cynical and hide his wounds— you've given up all thought of divorcing to marry me because you're afraid of a countersuit."

The door behind them creaked, and he humored June's small jump aside.

What the devil d'you mean?"— Fairless gladly turned to vent his temper on the waiter— 'coming in without knocking!"

Then his jaw dropped, his eyes started, and he answered June's hushed cry with an oath of consternation.

It was not the waiter, but Tabor, who, with a dimly apologetic air, was shutting the door.

Jubilee's Pardner

A Story of Boyhood Adventure

BY JUDD M. LEWIS

YESTERDAY was the big day. I woke up in the middle of the night and Mr. Farrell was banging off a shotgun next door and I looked out of the window and there were skyrockets going up everywhere, and I could see where there was red and green fire being burnt and it made me so homesick for all the fireworks that the Lost Bag of Tripe had spoilt that—I felt pretty bad. Jubilee had come and put his head on the window sill by the side of me and while he couldn't understand what all the skyrockets and everything were about and why I was feeling bad he was just a dog and all he needed to know was that I was feeling bad so he nudged up against me and whined and we had a very solemn time together for quite awhile. And then I crawled into bed and had there with my arm around his neck and went to sleep because I was too miserable to keep awake.

When I had let Jubilee down and had milked the cow after we woke up again and had done my work whilst the bunch hanged off what fireworks there were left in the shape of dinky little fireworks I felt my face and we went to the pasture with the cows. And with everyone throwing torpedoes and firecrackers the cows were certainly nervous and stepped high, wide handsome and often till they got to the pasture and the gate was shut shutting them in. Then I told the bunch to come on back home with me and I would try to get my father to dig up some spondulix for fireworks because he was home from work and so was my unkle and I said maybe my grandfather might have softening of the heart or something and dig up. So we all went home as fast as we could go, and my father and unkle and grandfather were setting on the front step like three black crows with white shirtsleeves, talking about the good old days and how they used to shoot anvils and things when they were boys. And before I had a chance to edge in on them an auto-delivery truck drove up and two men went around to the back and pulled out a box of fine finest and most fireworks I ever saw, and they were addressed to Thomas Aristides Brown. And just then the Lost Bag of Tripe's father came along and turned into our yard and said howdy-do, and then he asked me if the fireworks was as good as he'd see his son had destroyed. He said he was having a hard job making a square shooter out of his son and he hoped we would help him. He said he was going to stay home all day without a firework. Then I asked him to please let the Lost Bag of Tripe come over and help shoot the fireworks. We got along fine only Annabelle Lee sat down on a piece of punk that was burning but her clothes was so thin that she got up off of it before she smothered it. I don't blame her. Her mother said the fourth is an outrage.

I think me and Jubilee woke up grinning this morning and I got up and let him down out of the window and put on my britches and went down and did all my work. The bunch came over and we talked about the Fourth of July and what a good time we had had and when I went in to breakfast my mother said this is the first fifth of July morning that my hands wasn't all burnt up and my face twisted so crooked that I could whisper in my own ear. She said we were all remarkably fortunate with the exception of Annabelle Lee who was the only one that got a burn but I told her that even Annabelle Lee's burn was where it wouldn't show and they all laughed and my mother said there was always something to be thankful for. I think so too. But there would be more to be thankful for, I told her, if little girls had sense enough to not set on a piece of burning punk. My mother said that Annabelle Lee was certainly foolish to do a thing like that, and she hoped she would never bury herself under a mountain. I jumped up and said 'Golly' It's time I got my cows out." Then they all laughed, and even my ant took a chance on cracking her face. I suppose they think they are smart.

The Lost Bag of Tripe came along with the bunch this morning when we took our cows out and he was trying so hard to be good and looked so much like a little angel that we couldn't look at him for fear we would paint him one and try to make the mut look natural. We were all watching out for him to start something but he didn't. When we went in swimming in the creek he went in with us, and we went way up around the bend to give him a chance to chaw our shirts and give us an excuse to chase him home, but he never touched anything. If he keeps on this way we ain't going to have as good times as we used to have.

This isn't a very good time of year except to look at, for there ain't anything on the trees but blossoms, when it gets along to where there are berries and peaches and apples on the trees the farmers and we are going to get a lot of enjoyment. We went out across the river and got almost enough ripe cherries to make a pie, but the Lost Bag of Tripe ate them all up and we had to eat the pie and roasted it in the morning and it was like mud. It was delicious after the way we had to eat them. [illegible]

Love's Awakening

The Heart Story of a Woman's Lasting Affections

BY ADELE GARRISON

Princess Olina Shocked

PRINCESS OLINA'S faint, half stifled "No" as Harry Underwood finished announcing the double betrothal was audible to everyone at the table and involuntarily every eye turned toward her. She was leaning forward as if she were about to spring from her chair and her eyes were looking straight into those of Prince Georges. And the look in the eyes of the heir to the throne of Ireso reflected the startled dismay in hers. His self control was better than hers or he felt would have echoed her exclamation.

It was but for a fraction of a second however that their glances were locked in a common astonishment. Then their poise their common royal heritage returned to them their faces took on the expression of pleased interest suitable to the occasion and each of them managed a light little laugh for which I mentally saluted them.

Then Prince Georges lifted his glass of fruit punch and bowed slightly to the lovely princess opposite him.

To your happiness!" he said but barely tasted the drink before all this. This is one time we—what do they say over here?—put it over on each other, monsieur pas.

She laughed merrily and I wondered just what that effort of mirth had cost her.

I trust I surprised you as much as you did me Georges she told him.

You did he said with emphasis and then Harry Underwood cut short the little colloquy—at Lillian's signal I conjectured.

Line for kissing the prospective brides forms on the right he intoned with a burlesque accent that relieved the tension. But I had seen the dismayed look in Olina's eyes at his jest and interposed with a prompt amendment.

You mean the Continental kiss of the hand Harry I am sure I said demurely.

I suppose so" Mr. Underwood grumbled. But just wait till I find out who put you up to that. It isn't like you to spoil a fellow's cherished dream that way.

Tense Situation

Olina laughed with the rest, but a little later when we had left the table and the general congratulations were over she found occasion to say to me meaningly. Thank you so much Mrs. Graham. And—may I talk to you by yourself some time soon?

Of course I returned promptly, hoping that my eyes did not betray the excitement I felt at her question. I was quite certain that the subject of her talk would be the engagement of Mary and Georges. It was patent to me that the imperious young prince as had preceded what Harry Underwood would call the jolt of her young life in betrothal of Prince Georges betrothal to the girl over whom she had meant to triumph by announcing her own betrothal to Noel. I had studied her carefully during her sojourn at the Larches and I had told myself that while she was undoubtedly infatuated with Noel yet jealousy of Mary's attraction for both Georges and Noel was the mainspring of her determination to drag the young violinist in chains before Mary. That she had not realized this herself I was sure—it was a working of the subconscious—and her first reaction to the news of Mary's engagement had been one of dismayed incredulity her second a determination to find out how seriously the betrothal announcement was to be taken.

Perilous Paths

I was gratified that the girl had turned to me in her anxiety, but I also was determined to tread warily the perilous paths which assail the feet of those who receive confidences and I added an amendment to my prompt acquiescence.

I'll make the opportunity for a nice long chat tomorrow. I said adding as quick disappointment clouded her eyes. It really won't be possible before without inviting comment which I am sure you wish to avoid.

She shot a quick frightened glance at me.

Oh she whispered I suppose they are——

You are among friends my dear, please remember that. I said wondering a bit guiltily if she would be convinced of our friendliness could she fathom our plans for the breaking up of the engagements just announced. But I salved my conscience with the assurance that we were indeed sincere friends and that our plans were meant to secure her the lasting happiness which her marriage to Noel, a reluctant bridegroom, worshiping another girl, could never bring her.

I had no time, however, for more than the whispered assurance. A deferential hand touched my arm, and Philip Veritsen's suave but insistent tones compelled my attention.

"I must speak to you alone," Mrs. Graham, as soon as possible," he said.

Mystery: Did you ever see more than one or two drug stores in your life that weren't on a corner?

that if you take some to eat it is all right, but if you carry it home, then it's stealing. Girls don't seem to know what it takes to understand right from wrong. I am glad I ain't a girl. I am glad Yvonne ain't a boy too.

Three of Year's Song

QUARTET OFFERING SUNDAY.

Hits Feature Program

THREE of the outstanding song hits of the current year, songs that demonstrate the way composers are changing their style in response to the demands of radio listeners for better musical production, will be broadcast in the Atwater Kent hour at 8:15 o'clock Sunday night over the WEAF network.

Sunday's program will be the second appearance of the Atwater Kent quartet in its present summer series of Kent Sunday night concerts. The new songs will be supplemented by a number of familiar concert numbers to which they compare favorably in musical quality. The three new songs to be sung by the quartet are "Lover Come Back to Me," "I'm Bringing a Red, Red Rose," and "There's a Song in my Heart."

In addition to the quartet there will be a series of orchestral features by the Atwater Kent orchestra under the direction of Josef Pasternack.

HALF HOUR OF SYMPHONIC MUSIC

THE overture to Mendelssohn's "Ruy Blas" will open the half hour of classical music that the Symphonic program will present at 2 o'clock Sunday afternoon over the Columbia network. Tumarkin will be making his debut on the air while Ivantzoff is a world-wide figure in the field of singing. For the past four years he has been a pillar of the Washington Opera company and has often sung before presidents of the United States.

Boston Coeds Make Housekeeping Saving

BOSTON—Co-eds at Boston University, by means of a novel "Cooperative housekeeping plan" cooked their own meals and did their own housecleaning at a cost of but $5.50 per week for each student, including both room rent and meals.

The innovation was tried for an entire year at the B. U. Cooperative House on Bay State road, and so successful did it prove, that Mrs. Lucy Jenkins Franklin, dean of women at Boston University, announced that the project will be continued in the future.

To make the plan a success, each member of the "house" had assigned a particular task. Two girls, Miss Lillian Hatch, of Melrose, and Miss Bessie Swartz, of Mt. Jackson, Va., served as cooks while the remainder of the co-eds did their share of the housekeeping and waiting on the table.

Indiana Plans Aid for Young Convicts

INDIANAPOLIS—Gov. Harry G. Leslie of Indiana has begun a movement to rehabilitate youthful former convicts and to aid them to regain their places in society.

The Indiana governor has proposed that members of the Rotary, Kiwanis and other luncheon and service clubs shall quietly sponsor the erring youths and help them to get jobs when they have served their terms at the reformatory or penal farm.

Czechoslovakia has been estimated to have more than 200,000 amateur radio operators.

KONJOLA WENT TO SOURCE OF TWO AILMENTS

Relates How Master Medicine Relieved Her of Stomach and Liver Trouble

MRS. ANN SNURR

"For a long time I had no end of trouble with my stomach and liver," said Mrs. Ann Snurr, 1211 Girard Street, Toledo, Ohio. "My stomach was in a very acidy and inflamed state. Everything I ate caused gas to form in large quantities. Due to sluggish liver I was subject to bilious spells, dizziness and nausea.

"Before more than two weeks of treatment were up, my digestion was restored and I could eat without the gas bloating and belching. My liver is functioning perfectly and all bilious and dizzy attacks are ended. Konjola beats any medicine or all the medicines that I ever heard of or tried."

Konjola is sold in Marion at Stump & Sams drug store and by all the best druggists throughout this entire section.—Adv.

150 ANTI-SOVIET PLOTTERS EXECUTED

Five Lives Taken Daily, Reports Show; Arrests Run Into Thousands

MOSCOW, July 5—Death sentences are being imposed upon anti-Soviet plotters at the rate of 150 a month.

Official reports to the newspapers show at least five persons are executed daily.

Not all of the executions arise from class conflict. For instance, two drunken men were condemned and shot at Barnbinsk, Siberia, for wrecking the railroad station. They pulled a switch and sent a freight train crashing into a siding, wrecking six new locomotives.

Five members of a gang that attempted to execute a pogrom in a Jewish village in the Ukraine were sentenced to death and shot.

In each crime the prosecutor must prove the crime was of a counter revolutionary nature, because mere murder is not punishable by death in Soviet Russia.

The number of arrests runs into thousands monthly for crimes varying from inefficiency to negligence. In addition to cleaning out the undesirable element from the government and business institutions, the movement is putting thousands out of work. In Moscow alone the Communist party purposes to fire 60,000 lesser non-communist officials.

...io Caverns and Piatt's ...stle Easily Reached in ...to Trip from Marion

...e Through Marysville Leads to One of Most Interesting Spots in Middle West; Exploration of Caverns Requires Nearly an Hour

...of Mingo valley, the ... the largest ... middle west—Ohio ... Liberty Thirty-... acres have been ... and camping ...

... Marion residents have ... these caverns which are truly a remarkable piece of nature's work. The thousands who have not seen it may easily do so by a drive of approximately 50 miles Mrs D V. Gallagher, secretary of the Marion Auto Club, points out A detailed route to the caverns is given below.

The Ohio Caverns are three miles east of West Liberty, nine miles south of Bellefontaine, 10 miles north of Urbana The caverns are made up of a series of great rooms with stalactites and stalagmites of all sizes and shapes

Discovered in 1897

The caverns were discovered in 1897 by a Virginian, who noticed the rapid disappearance of water in a sink hole However, he did not explore. In 1... detailed explorations were made and shortly afterwards the caverns were opened to the public

The caverns are well lighted with electricity, and guides are provided to make the trip an interesting one. No matter how hot the day may be, a light wrap of some kind should be taken along on the trip through the caverns which requires nearly an hour The temperature is 54 degrees the year around

A few miles north, and slightly west of the Ohio caverns lies Piatt's Castle, or Mac-o-chee Castle A large part of the frame portion of this castle was originally the home of Robert Piatt, an early settler in the country, and was built some time prior to 1834. At a later date this portion of the Smith estate was acquired by Donn Piatt, who, after holding it for many years, began an addition and general remodeling in 1878 or 1879 It is said that he followed the lines and architecture to a large extent of a place with which he was familiar in France. The work was completed in 1881 at a cost of $85,000. Most of the materials, both stone and timber, are native products, and it is a tradition that the foundations of the house itself are 50 feet deep, and rest on living rock

Ideal Setting

While the building is constructed along rather massive lines as compared with modern architecture, it offers many peculiarities of construction It is in an ideal natural setting for such a building and has a very interesting history behind it. This castle should not be confused with "Piatt's Castle Mac-a-check" which lies a mile to the west, which is said to have been the property of Donn Piatt's brother.

Donn Piatt was an active figure in political activities of his day He published a newspaper at Washington, D. C for some time and, after his retirement to the castle, entertained eminent writers, including James Whitcomb Riley

The best route to this part of the state is over State route No. 4 to Marysville, a distance of 27 miles From Marysville State route No. 31 should be followed west until the driver notices large signs along the right side of the road, which direct tourists to the caverns. The roads are all fairly good and are entirely hard surface Piatts castle is not located on any State route, but is near the caverns. Guides at the caverns are always willing to direct tourists to the castle

Within a radius of seven miles from the castle lies the highest point of land in the state

FACTS about... RIVERSIDES
Study these points!
..they are your protection in knowing the Quality of tires you buy

The Whole Story Is This...

MOST well-known tire manufacturers in America sell at least three different qualities of tires.

So does Montgomery Ward & Co.

Most well-known tire manufacturers in America charge three different prices for the three different qualities of tires.

So does Montgomery Ward & Co.

Most manufacturers or dealers do not admit that they sell three different qualities of tires.

But Montgomery Ward & Co does!

Our Super Service RIVERSIDE, unconditionally guaranteed for 30,000 miles, is our VERY BEST or Super Quality, and, in our opinion, the finest tire ever built. Compare it with any super quality ture made no matter how high the price.

Our Standard RIVERSIDE, guaranteed for 16,000 miles, is our FIRST QUALITY tire, and is equal in quality of materials, workmanship, appearance and service to other first quality tires made by leading manufacturers. It should never be compared with any "second line" brand —no matter what name the tire bears.

Our WARDWEAR tire, guaranteed for 10,000 miles, is our SECOND QUALITY tire, and equals any other second quality tire. It sells at an extremely low price and is only to be compared with low-priced "second-line" tires produced by leading manufacturers—regardless of any claims to the contrary.

Montgomery Ward & Co. believes in "calling a spade a spade" and letting the purchaser know exactly what we are selling him. It is distinctly against our policy to create the impression that our WARDWEAR quality is to be compared with first quality tires of leading manufacturers.

Common sense should tell you that when any company produces three different articles to sell at three different prices, there must be a difference in the quality.

All RIVERSIDE and WARDWEAR tires are made by manufacturers who are noted for the excellence of their products. Ward's economical distribution methods create shortcuts and economies which are directly reflected in the prices of our tires and, regardless of whether you purchase RIVERSIDES or WARDWEARS, we guarantee that you will save money as compared with the prices charged by others for the same identical qualities. In addition, at Ward's you pay for Guaranteed Mileage, which in itself is a definite measure of value.

VOTE SUM OF $500 FOR MILK TESTING

Crawford County Commissioners Vote Appropriation; To Start Work at Once

BUCYRUS, July 5—The county commissioners, late Wednesday, voted to appropriate the sum of $500 for the purpose of completing testing for tuberculosis in cows producing milk for human consumption in Crawford county following discussion on the matter held at a meeting Monday at which the commissioners, state and federal representatives and private owners were present, at which time doubt was expressed as to whether the appropriation would be made

A decision against making the appropriation would have been a great loss to the Ohio Farmers Cooperative Dairy, who, on the strength of the appropriation being made, recently built a complete modern dairy in the city. A great amount of the milk passing through the local dairy plant is shipped to the Cleveland market where an ordinance prohibits the sale of milk in that city not secured from tuberculin tested herds.

The $500 appropriation will be used by a state man who will be put in the county at once, and will be used for automobile mileage, car tags and for the services of a local assistant to travel about the county with the state man. About 170 herds remain to be tested in the county.

KENTON, July 5—First harvesting of wheat in Hardin county was reported July 4 on the farm of Earl M. Oates, four miles north of here. This is the earliest wheat harvest in the county in years.

A heavy crop of good quality grain is anticipated in this section this year, observers say. At the Oates farm the crop is heavy and the heads are well filled out

Ideal weather conditions this spring, with a number of hot days and no preponderance of rainfall was credited for the excellency of the crop and the early harvest

Three "Swarms" of Bees "Land" on Woman's Body

Bees are alright in the honey manufacturing business or to hold up as the humble example for improving each shining hour, but to come in close contact with them is something the average person prefers to miss. However, if you know your bees it isn't such a problem to handle not only one, but a swarm, or at least one Hardin county woman found it so.

Bees and lots of them, are to be found on the Herman Williams farm near Mt. Victory, and while attending to a swarm of them Mrs. Williams had an unusual and interesting experience.

The bees had swarmed on a small blackberry brier and Mrs. Williams had started across the yard carrying the brier to an empty hive when another swarm came out of the air and alighted on the swarm on the brier and on her left arm.

Standing very still until the second swarm had settled, Mrs. Williams again started for the hive, which by that time was only a few feet away, when another very large swarm lighted on her nearly covering her whole body. 'My worst worry was the heavy load on my back and hands, which nearly upset me," declared Mrs. Williams, in relating her experience.

Mrs. Williams, who weighs only 100 pounds, waited until the third swarm had settled and then made her way slowly to the hive and laid the brier down by the entrance. Very soon the bees started marching into their new home and slowly the heavy burden began to lighten. The "bee woman" didn't wait to see which queen survived but the three swarms remained peacefully in the hive, and there is only one queen.

The whole experience lasted about 30 minutes and strange as it may seem to those unacquainted with the busy bee, Mrs. Williams came through without a sting.

Mr. and Mrs. Williams have 47 stands of bees and have been in the business for 20 years.

INDEPENDENCE DAY PROGRAM ON LOCAL TRACK DRAWS CROWD

Local Entrant Finishes Second in Stock Car Race with Ford Roadster

BUCK BURRELL of Columbus driving a Frontenac capped two of the three professional automobile races on the Fourth of July program at the Marion county fairground track and came close to winning the third had it not been for running out of oil at the five mile point in a ten mile jaunt Billy Rodgers driving a Rodgers special came in to cop the final pro event at 10 miles

No serious accidents marred the afternoons program which consisted of three professional races one at five miles and the other two at ten miles torcycle race and a stock car race However in the final 10 mile event Joe Molnar and Al Miller of Detroit locked wheels at the north west bend but neither car was damaged badly Miller disentangled his car and came on to place third in the race

Seven Pros Here

There were only seven professional cars here for the races both Corlett of Columbus and Owen Granger of Detroit failing to show up No reason could be given for their failure to appear

The fastest time of the day was made in the opening event a professional five mile race This was won by Burrell in four minutes and 0 seconds fast time for the local track Burrell set a fast pace in this race that only Rodgers and Jim Brown in a Buick Special were able to match Rodgers came in strong at the finish of this race and was only about an eighth of a mile behind Burrell at the finish

The single cylinder motorcycle race which followed the first pro event was more thrilling to the 1500 more or less spectators than were the three professional races The motorcycles in all three miles 3 Harleys of Newark Ohio 1 Indian winning Robert Otto of Columbus was second and R Jones also of Newark was third These boys ran a nice race taking the curves at good speed However the runners up were at no time a serious threat to Provine

Chevy Wins

Ralph Miller of Columbus with his Chevrolet roadster won the five mile stock car event with a Ford entrant Alva Redman in a new Ford roadster taking second This time for this race was five minutes and 47 seconds It was rumored that the Chevrolet was geared up for this race and that first names had been given to Redman No word could be gotten from the sponsors of the program as to the strength of this statement

The final two 10 mile pro events were run off in average time with Burrell winning the first event in 10 minutes and seconds and Rodgers the second Burrell led all the way in the first ten miler with Rodgers coming in strong at the finish Bud Corley in a Buick special was lapped twice in this race by the first three finishers and finally dropped out

Burrell Drops Out

Burrell also led the lead of the final event for the first few laps until he was forced to drop out when his car ran out of oil Rodgers hopped into the lead which he managed to hold when Brown in his K2 thunderbird on the last six lap After Burrell's car had been fixed Shorty Wolf its owner took the wheel and just fresh missed getting into third money being nosed out by Al Miller of Detroit The time of the final ten mile event was 11 minutes and 11 seconds

GALAXY OF OLD TIME BALL STARS PLAY EAGLES SUNDAY

At least 25 former Marion baseball stars have signified their intentions of playing with the Old Timers outfit that will battle the Marion Eagles at Lincoln Park next Sunday afternoon Billy Potter is organizing the Old Timers and reports that his team will give the locals a good battle (until their legs give out at least)

The Old Timers have decided to give their share of the gate receipts to the Community Fund A few former Marion players who are now located out of town have written Potter that they will be on hand for the game and that the experience of get ting on the old lot once more will more than amply repay them for the expense of coming here

Ross Colegrove Jackman Marshall and Ballenger will do the pitching with Artie Anderson and Fish Herring behind the plate Herring is now exactly an 11 timer but his legs at times will be able to withstand the pace of the receiving work better than those of the boys

A baseball game between two all star teams captained by Ross Rice and Walt Ballauf will attract as much interest from most of the fans as the baseball contest Rice has secured Carlisle at Deadon to do his announcing while Rube Gruber will do the ball duty for Ballauf

Some of the players who are expecting to be on hand with the Old Timers are Baltimore Lawson Glenn Coleerove Beam Weiler Lawter Waters Setter Ballenger, Ebb Bell Jackman Ramer Stout, Marshall Ribelin, Buford Rose- berry the Stafford brothers Shirk Hogen Riddle Herring Smallwood and the home crew

PIRATES TAKE LEAD BY WINNING TWICE

Cards Victims of Bucs' Attack as Reds Hold Cubs to Even Break

NEW YORK N Y July 5—After no end of mental judging the committee named to select the one big parade of Independence day has announced that the flowers and bunting be awarded the pitchers of both major leagues

It seems a wise selection for these hardy souls—some six or four of them—marched back and forth all afternoon to the sour music of 671 hits including twenty two homers—ratting off enemy hats

This making a neat average of 24 and a fraction hits in each of the 16 games played it can really be seen that the boys suffered as they marched

What was the result of all this lambasting? Just one thing—Pittsburgh eased by Chicago to take a scant half game hold on National league leadership The Bucs convincingly trounced the Cards twice in order to make their jump Chicago dropped the opening tilt with Cincinnati but took the night cap Hack Wilson started a near riot in the second game when he ran from first base and took a few healthy swings at Pitcher Ray Kolp Both were removed from the field

The Giants consistent to a fault split with Boston Spohrer, a former McGraw boy who didn't make so much good in the city beat his former friends in the first tilt when he singled to drive across two runs In the second affair Larry Benton had the Braves completely subdued, shutting them out Mel Ott gained a peg on his home run rivals when he slapped his twenty fourth of the year

The American race remained at a standstill. Philadelphia taking two from Boston while New York and St Louis did the same, with Washington and Detroit serving as the victims

Large iron ore deposits in North Africa, recently acquired by Swedish and Dutch interests, have been found to contain about 35 per cent of metal.

YOUTH HALTED IN "RESCUE" ATTEMPT

Columbus Lad Takes Auto and Gun To Get Pal Out of Reformatory

COLUMBUS, July 5—With all of the adventurousness which "dime novels" had probably taught him, Frank Ferguson, 17, sallied forth from this city in a stolen car and armed with a revolver to "rescue" a "pal" from the Boys' Industrial school at Lancaster.

Ferguson was back in the city today—in jail, and faced with the prospects of serving his sentence in the reformatory.

His trip was brought to an abrupt halt, when Deputy Sheriff Belborn of Lancaster, arrested the boy on the school grounds at the Fairfield county town.

According to Belborn, the car which the youth was driving had been reported stolen and the boy was armed with a revolver. Belborn expressed the opinion that Ferguson was intent on trying to aid a friend to escape from the industrial school.

OHIO PASTOR'S SON SLAIN BY OFFICER

Youth Alleged To Have Stolen Auto, Flees After Accident

ZANESVILLE, July 5—A minister's son, who allegedly stole his brother-in-law's automobile, was shot and killed on the street here last night by a patrolman.

He is Clarence Hopkins, 24, alias Robert Andrews, of Kent, son of the Rev. J. A. Hopkins, former pastor of a Zanesville church and now monitor of the Free Methodist church of Canton.

Hopkins, together with two youths, Benjamin Aerdon, 19, of Cadiz, and Charles Eggerer, 18, of Kent, were driving here last night when Patrolman Edgar Rider noticed that the car in which they were riding had been reported stolen June 20 from Paul Sandeslin of Gahon, Hopkins' brother-in-law.

Rider called to the youths to halt, but, according to the patrolman, they refused to stop.

A chase followed, which ended when a car commandeered by Rider forced the fleeing auto to the curb and into a fire hydrant. A wheel was broken on Hopkins' car, and the youth leaped from the machine and started to flee.

Rider opened fire and shot and killed Hopkins.

The other youths were arrested and are being held in jail today, pending an investigation which will be made into the fatal shooting and the reported stolen car.

Seek Motorist Who Attacked Young Girl

COLUMBUS, July 5—Police are conducting an intensive search here today for a man, driving a large black roadster, with green fenders, who last night forced an 11-year-old girl into his car, assaulted her, and then returned the child to her home early today.

The girl was walking on a North Side street in company with her sister, Kathryn, 14, and Louise Johnson, 14, when the man drove up to them and offered to take them a ride. When the girls refused he followed them for a square, and then jumped out of the car, grabbed the 11-year-old girl, threw her into his car and speeded away.

Now the Insect Troubadours Come Along to Furnish Us With Music

Are Instrumentalists, However, Rather Than Vocalists, Says Writer

BY PROF. ALLEN C. CONGER
Department of Zoology,
Ohio Wesleyan University

JULY—and the nightly serenade which we now hear tells us that mid-summer is truly here. When clanging street-cars and honking automobiles are left behind, and when the darkness falls, the little insect troubadours which dwell among grass and leaf strike up an ever-swelling chorus. No vocalists are these, whose notes are the metronomes of night, but rather are they instrumentalists, whose song varies in tempo rather than pitch. Its oft-repeated phrases come stealing into our consciousness like the strumming of tiny stringed instruments or the rhythmic clash of castanets.

Several months ago we referred to the spring song of the frogs, toads and tree-toads as an unusual exhibition for cold-blooded vertebrates, which are typically voiceless. It is just as striking to find among the insects, usually so mute, a group many of whose species are equipped with sound-producing organs. Not among the higher insects, such as the flies, bees, wasps and ants, do we find these insect musicians, but in the more lowly group to which the grasshoppers and crickets and their relatives belong.

Crickets Attain Climax of Sound Production; Musicians of Ability

The true grasshoppers are sun-lovers and reach their climax in the parched fields of grass and stubble in late summer. Most of us have noted the crackling sound produced by some of these fellows as they poise on vibrating wings and then drop to earth to blend their colors with those of their surroundings. Many of the other grasshoppers produce snapping or scratching sounds when not in flight, but none of them reaches the high degree of sound production which is to be found among the green meadow grasshoppers and their close relatives, the well-known Katydids.

Here the males, who are the musicians, are usually provided with a coarse file formed by the veins at the bases of the wings. The rasping notes produced by rubbing these files together are often of surprising volume. Among many species there are quite distinct day and night songs. Sometimes even the shadow of a cloud will cause the little singer to swing into the measures of the night song, which differs quite markedly in tempo from the song heard by day.

"Sound" by Crickets

The climax of sound production is attained by the crickets. Even our word cricket is from the French "crieri," which is an imitation of their song. The European house-cricket, which has become a symbol of domestic tranquillity, is an insect musician of ability and even the American field cricket, which often invades our fireplaces is not to be slighted in this regard, but the outstanding performer in the whole group is the Snowy Tree-cricket, of which we have several species in this part of the United States. The note of the Tree Cricket is so loud that it seems impossible that it could come from so tiny a creature. More than once we have seen a room carefully searched for the insect intruder, who was meanwhile hidden in a small bouquet of flowers on a table in the room.

One phase of the song of the Tree Cricket is of more than usual interest. Many years ago it was discovered that the rate of the chirp was dependent upon temperature. In fact, the correlation is so remarkably close that it is interesting to test its accuracy. Count the number of chirps in one minute. From the number obtained take 40 and then divide the remainder by four. To the quotient add 50 and the result is the temperature in degrees Fahrenheit. In these days of thermometers it may not be necessary to use so involved a method and we will usually find the mercury tube more accessible than the Tree Cricket, but I am not unmindful of a certain Boy Scout ordeal which involves the use of bow, spindle and tinder in a world where match boxes are, to say the least, quite common.

Roosevelt Attack on Big Business Hailed

NEW YORK, July 5—Democrats were exulting today over Gov. Franklin D. Roosevelt's attack on "big business" at the Independence Day celebration and dedication of the New Tammany Hall building in Union Square.

Hailed as "the next president of the United States," the state's chief executive reviewed the struggle between popular government and special privilege. This struggle, he asserted, was just as real today as it ever was.

Detective Slain, Another Wounded, While Police Guard Probation Prisoner

Man Opens Fire on Officers in Springfield Hotel When They Question Him as to Ownership of Automobile; Captured When He Seeks Aid for Wounds

SPRINGFIELD, July 5—One detective is dead, another is in a serious condition in a hospital and a man, said by police to be a Detroit prisoner on probation, is in another hospital under heavy police guard, as the result of a gunbattle in the Arcade hotel here early yesterday morning.

Noticing a car, which had been reported stolen, parked in front of the hotel, Detectives Oliver Holderby, 38, and Howard Roush, entered the hotel.

After learning the car had been occupied by a couple registered as Mr. and Mrs. W. G. Vale, the detectives went to that room.

When they sought to question the man, he opened fire on them. In the ensuing gun battle, Holderby was shot and killed, Roush was seriously injured and the Detroit man was also seriously wounded.

Desired Escape

The latter was later identified as Theodore Baraket, 22, of Louisville, Ky., and is said to be under probation on a 10-year prison term imposed at Detroit on a charge of carrying concealed weapons.

His companion, Mrs. Leona Vale, 25, Columbus, is being held by police for questioning.

Baraket's desperate attempt to avoid capture is believed to have resulted in his desire to escape from being sent back to Detroit to serve the 10-year term.

Stolen in Cincinnati

The car the man was said to have been driving was reported as stolen from George Loer at Cincinnati, May 2.

Following the gunbattle, Baraket fled to the stolen car and drove as far south as South Charleston, where his wounds forced him to seek a physician's aid.

A constable was called, and, becoming suspicious of the man's story that he had been shot by bandits at Xenia, the constable called local police and Baraket was ordered held.

Woman Divorced Twice

Questioning of the woman revealed, according to police, that she had been married and divorced twice. She told police, they say, that Baraket had been active in gangster circles in Detroit.

She declared that she and Baraket had been living together as husband and wife in hotels at Springfield, Columbus, Dayton, and Louisville.

Her parents reside at Oak Hill, O., she said.

Cleanup Method to Take Place of Fumigation as Check on Smallpox Here

New System To Be Required for Quarantined Homes Approved by Board of Health; Only Safe Method of Combatting Disease, Is Belief

City health board went on record Wednesday favoring a general cleanup method of treating homes in preference to the usual fumigation method formerly used following the release of a home from smallpox quarantine. Arguments were heard pro and con during the meeting.

The health board also decided to use the less expensive bichloride for formaldehyde formerly used when fumigation is thought necessary.

Wednesday's method was the second one in which the merits of the two methods were discussed. Dr. S. W. Marion, member of the board, objected to the expense of fumigation when the question came up at the preceding meeting. He made the motion to abandon the fumigation method in favor of the cleanup method.

Details of Plan

The cleanup method as explained to the board by Dr. Marion, would require the occupants of a quarantined home to thoroughly scrub all wood work with a soda slightly diluted with carbol acid or some other specified disinfectant, clean all wall paper and window shades with wallpaper cleaner, and clean all curtains and other loose hanging materials in the room. The members of the family must also look to their own cleanliness. This method must be carried out in order to secure the release of the quarantine, health officials say.

In arguments to abandon the fumigation method, Dr. Marion stated that the fumes while fumes would not kill flies, bedbugs, roaches or other common insects, and could hardly be expected to destroy germs. He said people whose homes had been fumigated were confident that all germs were killed in the process, and were then lax about the cleanup of the home and its interior.

Not Required by Law

State health laws do not require fumigation. The moral effect on the occupants of the fumigated homes is not denied as many families suspect health officials are lax when their homes are not fumigated. The general opinion of the board favored the abandonment of the fumigation method with the possible exception of the sulphur fume method when requested, in favor of the "cleanup" method.

There is some dissension among Marion medical men concerning fumigation and its merits. Many Marion doctors are decidedly in favor of fumigation, and more of it will probably be done but it will not be urged by health authorities.

LAST RITES HELD

Epworth Church Filled for Funeral Service of Mrs Hochstetler

The funeral of Mrs Elizabeth Hochstetler, wife of Fred M Hochstetler, South Vine st, was held Wednesday afternoon. Short services were held at the home at 2:30 o'clock and at 3 o'clock at Epworth M. E church with Dr. B. L. George in charge.

The Powell Sunday school class, of which Mrs Hochstetler was a member for 37 years, assembled in a body. A large congregation of relatives and friends attended the services, filling the church to capacity, and many beautiful floral offerings were received. Burial was made in the family lot in Marion cemetery.

Out of town relatives who attended the services were Mr. and Mrs Ed. Weiland and daughter, Mr. and Mrs. August Young, Mrs. Nettie Weiland and daughter, Miss Emma Weiland and Bert Hamey, of Mt. Gilead, Mr. and Mrs George Mabley, of Nevada, Mr. and Mrs Arthur Mabley, Mr. and Mrs John Cronen and Mr. and Mrs Paul Cronen, of Bucyrus; Mr. and Mrs John Cull and son, of Sharon, Pa. Ritzy Rosalie

GENERALLY speaking, one is not apt to lose a pair of sox, but just the same Rosalie has her initials on hers, and even if they aren't especially helpful as far as the initials are concerned Rosalie thinks it is quite a clever idea. Of course the rest of her leg exposure must be made up a la suntan, and she has discovered a novelty in the way of suntan powder. It is not a powder, but a powder which tans when exposed to the sun. It takes only a minute to put on and two minutes to tan it, so it is quite convenient. It comes in two shades—light and dark—and will not rub off on her clothes as do suntan oils, powders and creams.

MILK CONDEMNED

City Inspector Finds Bacteria Count Too High in Some of Local Supply

The treage bacter a count of raw milk entering the city during June was greatly increased by the examination of several samples of raw milk being peddled here, according to Dr. J. T. Gruber's report, submitted to the city health board Wednesday. The milk and meat inspector's report shows the average bacteria count of the entire city's supply was close to 75,000, whereas the average normal count should be around 25,000. This increase was made by a count of 375,000 in samples of raw milk taken from local wagons.

Most of this was condemned. The average count in pasteurized milk was 23,000, a very healthy count.

Dr. Gruber made 64 visits to farm dairies sending milk into Marion. He granted 97 permits to send milk for use here, and refused 15 permits. A dozen were given time extension to construct milk cooling houses where farm dairies might safely store milk for short periods.

Turk Jobs for Turks Kemal's New Motto

CONSTANTINOPLE — "Turkish jobs for the Turks" is the motto of the Mustapha Kemal Government. Foreigners in Turkey, by a new law introduced in the Assembly, will be forbidden to carry on many professions and trades.

Among them are those of: doctor midwife, chemist, chauffeur, dentist, broker, baker, porter, lawyer naval captain, shoe-shiner, interpreter.

Foreigners doing any of the forbidden jobs must give them up within six months. Foreign airmen and specialists in State departments will be given special permits. A number of Americans will come under this veto.

New England Will Boost Industries

BOSTON—Believing that bigger and better business can be obtained only through the medium of advertising both actual and implied, the New England council's recreational development committee in a letter brought to the attention of all New England manufacturers the fact that 3,000,000 people visit New England during the summer. It is urged that some plan be constructed whereby these visitors would become acquainted with New England manufacturers through reading about them and seeing them in the factories.

"Spirit-Dictated" Will Contested in Courts

BENTON HARBOR, Mich.—A will which was "dictated by the spirits," was under consideration in circuit court here recently. Two daughters and a son carried the $100,000 estate left by Mrs. Martha Brant, widow of Edward Brant, one time mayor of Benton Harbor.

Mrs. Brant's many spirit messages were read during the contest. According to testimony, Mrs. Brant's relatives said that after she died "spirit" came to her. The walls of the Brant mansion are covered with crudely drawn pictures showing them a home deploring a cow with a toothache and a horse with a broken head.

RELIEF FROM CURSE OF CONSTIPATION

A Battle Creek physician says, "Constipation is responsible for more misery than any other cause."

But immediate relief has been found. A tablet called Rexall Orderlies has been discovered. This tablet attracts water from the system into the lazy, dry, evacuating bowel called the colon. The water loosens the dry food waste and causes a gentle, thorough, natural movement without forming a habit or ever increasing the dose.

Stop suffering from constipation. Chew a Rexall Orderlie at night. Next day bright. Get 24 for 25c today at the nearest Rexall Drug Store. C. G. Ungericht.—Adv.

DIALOGUE KABITZERS REPLACE REPEATERS

And Movies Decide To Make Talkies Out of Bedroom Farces

BY DAVID F. SENTNER
Marion Star Staff Writer

NEW YORK July 5 — That great hokey pokey national institution, the bedroom farce made its debut in the talkies in The Fall of Eve (Columbia Pictures). And despite the fringe of gray moss on the idea it proved a big side splitting laugh.

The result of taking the old fashioned complication of an out of town husband surprised by his wife during his merry merry intentions came out astonishingly well when set to screen dialogue.

And the happy effect augured well for adapting stage farces to the cinema field.

Farces like pickpockets require speed in change of scene to attain maximum efficiency.

The success of the farce form in the talkies may be due to the rapidity of movement possible in screen technique.

And I discovered that gags spoken from the screen seemed to pick up the boys and girls out front whereas the same lines from the stage would go over only half as well.

When the raging wife of the holiday making husband is referred to as a girl in the cross.

If she is a girl in love I'm a boy scout.

Such broad treatment caused the audience to roar in best waves of laughter.

While the sound equipment for below par is prominently displayed throughout the play each setting the title of the film is about the naughtiest thing about it.

Ford Sterling one of the original Keystone Comedy constables, plays the big sweater man from Chicago trying to do a little private knitting behind his wife's back in New York.

Patsy Ruth Miller is a scream as a vamp who gets her comeuppance by being a pal mate in his mistress' scheme.

Indeed it did a new style to adopt actresses from old days. I never real expected to see the Gish sisters.

A raw novel gag when the build of a sperm whale sat before me and repeated lectured upon what ever the characters ate.

Here is a new menace of the talkies and something to get to be afraid it has come to stay.

The Constant Nymph

THIS great picture there are no [illegible] in London Hall into the [illegible] restrictions characteristics of the British nation and their [illegible] it more productive and pleasant with [illegible] of [illegible] quality.

There are none of those extreme tall orders in The Constant Nymph (directed by Basil Dean), which makes American movies look cruel due to millions of emotion starved fans.

Lewis Dodd (Ivor Novello) keeps deep love for Tessa (Mabel Poulton) and well within the speed limit of a Proust novel. Dodd is brotherly, keeps his pipe puffing in his mouth is never exactly Gilbertish in his approach.

His self-containment on the part of the hero is admirable or disappointing according to the individual heart empire.

Interior adheres to the novel and the scenes in the Austrian Tyrol are things of beauty.

Although the dramatic wheels creak occasionally in the production, the performances of Miss Poulton shines through. She is most charming as a creature of freedom and when she dies at the end even the theatre ticket tearers wiped his eyes with the back of their hat.

On the Streets of Marion

WITH THE STAR STAFF

Music in the Air

FROM early morning until late at night, music is in evidence on the streets of Marion. It eases the monotony of a thousand chores, and furnishes an accompaniment for auto horns and factory whistles.

Wandering down the street at 7 o'clock in the morning one can usually hear some fireman whistling as he leads a milk horse from the barn to the wagon. He does this with no conception to the tune he is playing, but we often wonder if the boarders of Mrs. Grundy object to him for their breakfast.

A little farther on we hear a half hour later a lusty tenor as a young man swings out of a store to the blare of a high pitched pipe organ playing a popular number. It is a sprightly air, but the organist fails to imbue the singer with his enthusiasm. The song continues at a speed the latest dance might inspire.

On another street someone is whistling a few measured strains of another jazz aria which is faintly recognized as the one to which he executed a fancy dance step on the preceding evening. He continues to whistle in spite of the fact that he is attempting to pound out certain considerations on a heavy truck fender, an act which enables the listener to catch about every third note.

Revives Memories

When the sun is well started on its daily errand, an aged blind man brings out his accordion, more widely known to radio announcers as a cabinet. With this instrument he gives the passing business man a reminder of a harmonious tune he whistled 10 years ago, but has since forgotten. A dime clinks in the small cup and that man's step, rather as destined to bear the same tune whistled and hummed the remainder of the day.

Evening comes, and radios are turned on. A hundred symphonic, quartets, jazz orchestras, ensemble, tremulous soloists, vocal contests and lusty announcers clash for first place in every receiving set. This cacophony of entertainment lasts till midnight.

About 1 o'clock a collegiate Ford bedecked with an awful shade of barn paint and lacking like its passengers a top brace, by four more or less youthful voices, peal out the strains of Sweet Adeline. A passing policeman idly wonders where they obtained the juice that never fails to inspire this number, and the car and the song pass on.

About 1 o'clock an angry cat strikes a most unappropos pitched and the movements of the day's symphony are quiet—perhaps.

RIDING in a baby carriage, is often humiliating to small children but to grow up and be married and then be forced to ride in a perambulator up and down the main drag, followed by three machines loaded to the running boards with yelling hellions is almost beyond the point of good nature.

Thursday night about 10 o'clock "hungers on" uptown rushed to the curbs to watch the approach of a screaming, yelling crowd of young people, bent on giving one of the best bellings in the history of the town.

Leading the procession was a jolly fat man, maybe the bridegroom and maybe not, pushing an antique baby carriage in which the happy bride was supposed to be enjoying herself.

DIVORCE may be on the increase, but so is matrimony. In Marion county 77 marriage licenses were issued in June, and this is believed to be the highest mark ever reached here in any one month.

"This pronounced trend toward the marriage altar was not just a local condition according to reports which show that other counties in this section of Ohio also established high totals in the month of brides. Union county, which has a population much smaller than Marion county, reports 27 licenses, the largest number recorded since the present probate judge took office eight years ago.

"The ancient belief that 'two can live as cheaply as one' is generally conceded to be a bit overdrawn especially since eggs are no longer six cents a dozen and automobile manufacturers have begun to advocate two cars per family.

"It is true that some tend to cast doubt on the gravity of two living as cheaply as one, but that, too, does not appear to discourage young people from taking a chance at booking up in connubial harness.

Juvenile Concert

TO hear a voice and not be able to see the singer is an exasperating experience but to see the singers that made the music is sometimes quite a letdown.

About three days ago a South Main street music store placed several rolls of music for player pianos in its window as an advertisement. One of them was near the side window where the words could be read with ease. Several children were seen playing in front of the store but the majority of people passed them by without noticing them. It wasn't long until the feeble strains of some popular song floated out on the street. As the singers gathered, one saw the reason for the lack of interest. A juvenile trio of Jack and Jill were trying to sing with the record, but when she got a little ahead or behind the boy with a high, shrill voice would get balled up and stop. Then the other boy, with a deep, gruff voice, would get balled up. Then Tom and Jerry would get balled up. Then all started over again. Finally realizing the futility of the task, they gave up in disgust. They were two dirty little boys with their arms around each other trying to keep the world off of the piano. Both of them looked as though soap and water had shunned them for several days. One boy was trying to sing and at the same time watch a grasshopper he had in his hand. A passerby could not help but smile as the boys gave up in the attempt to sing about the time he was trying to get the boys started. He glanced back as he passed on and saw the boys starting over again. They made a nice fadeout scene for the movies but to the little boys it was just once when they could sing to their hearts' content.

Today's Review of Grain Market

CHICAGO, July 5—Led by an impressive upturn in the Winnipeg market, local wheat prices Wednesday continued their bullish advance Crop news from the Northwest continued sensational, and while local values failed to keep pace with the Canadian market because of heavy profit taking and hedging pressure, substantials gains were recorded

Coarse grains and rye made better response to the general constructive sentiment induced by the wheat market. Corn was more active, particularly in the December option, with unfavorable crop reports causing commission house buying.

The close in wheat was strong and only a fraction below the highs showing net gains for the day of 2¾@2¾c Corn closed ⅞@2c higher; oats, ½@⅝c up, and rye, 1¾@2¼c higher, Liverpool closed ⅝@⅞d higher, while Winnipeg advanced 3¾@5¼c.

Prices Open Higher

Relative strength of Winnipeg at the outset had little effect on the local market and prices opened higher, dipped below the previous close then rallied and hung around closing prices until mid-session. Selling was persistent by locals and commission houses Much of it was credited to Southwest hedging, and there was considerable profit taking and evening up for the holiday as well as some local pressure anticipating a technical reaction such as Liverpool experienced before the close

However, bullish crop advices from the Northwest on both sides of the line poured in and Winnipeg ignored the dragging tendency of the local market. This induced new buying and short covering and prices rose sharply in the final hour of trading High temperatures with need for moisture were reported from many sections of Canada, while the domestic Northwest continues in need of rain, reporting deterioration.

Good Foreign Demand

While bulls were disappointed over the failure of the market to completely follow Winnipeg, it placed the market in a stronger technical position for over the holiday and held prices to a better level for export. Foreign demand continued good with sales of durums, hard Winters and Manitobas totaling 1,000,000 bu Inquiry for hard Winters is broader, promising an outlet at the Gulf for heavy stocks of new wheat coming to Southwest terminals.

Nat C Murray of Clement Curtis & Co. figures the Winter wheat crop at 601,000,000 bu, the average of other private experts and the Spring crop at 247,000,000 bu, compared with the average of 254,000,000 bu. He places the carry-over in farm stocks, country mill and elevator supplies and visible at 150,000,000 bu, or 81,400,000 bu more than a year ago.

Corn More Active

There was more interest in corn yesterday particularly in the December which met with an active commission house trade and registered a somewhat advance. Crop reports are bullish and Munroe's estimated the crop at 2,081,000,000 bu, slightly less than the average of private estimates and calls conditions below the average for the end of June. Cash trade continued fairly active with the basis unchanged to ½c higher. Local shipping sales totaled 80,000 bu, and 125,000 bu was booked, mostly on the late advance

Deliveries yesterday on July contract wheat, 817,000 bu, corn 182,000 bu, oats, 300,000 bu; rye 74,000 bu

In the cash market wheat was 1@2c higher; corn unchanged to 1c up; oats steady, rye strong, and barley strong

Cars inspected: Wheat, 120; corn, 165; oats 93; rye, none and barley, 7

To Have Her Children on Stage With Her--That's Ambition of Barrymore

Daughter Going to Europe for Year of Study, Her Son to Princeton

BY DAVID F. SENTNER

(Copyright, 1929, by I. N. S.)

NEW YORK, July 5—Poets, peasants and great actresses have their dreams.

That of Ethel Barrymore is to have her beautiful, talented 17-year-old daughter, Ethel Barrymore Colt, carry on the traditions of the Barrymore family, which for six generations have upheld the highest standards of the theater.

Her daughter recently was graduated with highest honors from Notre Dame convent at Moylan, Pa., where both Ethel Barrymore and her mother, Georgie Drew Barrymore, attended. Miss Barrymore left the convent at the age of 13 to go on the stage.

"I shall take her with me to start her on her stage career," said Miss Barrymore. She is a wonderful girl, with remarkable intelligence. And she can dive and swim astoundingly well. She is also very fond of her music.

Unless She Marries

"I shall send her to Europe soon to study for a year before she makes her stage debut. Yes, I shall have her act with me."

Then she added with maternal wistfulness "——unless she gets married and loses her love for the stage."

Miss Barrymore does not believe that stage life offers any snares to girls of innate refinement. She thinks, on the contrary, that the broad contacts of the theater add to the character of a girl. However, she does believe that a girl should conserve her energy for the arduous hours which the theater demands.

Her children often come to the theater to watch their mother in her plays. Sam, her 18 year-old son was visiting her in her dressing room previous to the interview.

Anxious For Them

"Sam is going to Princeton" said Miss Barrymore. "He is wild about going on the stage. I shall eventually have both Ethel and Sam in the company with me—I hope."

She laughed happily and I do not think she was acting.

"The Barrymore company is

strikingly different from the average theatrical troupe. They are all devoted to their leader, some of them having been with her for many years. The company is going on a national tour which will last into January.

At 50 Miss Barrymore looks amazingly young at close range.

Theater Offers No Snares to Girls of Refinement, Star Declares

Her figure is slender and her face, a somewhat Egyptian face, is clear of wrinkles. And her lustrous, spiritual eyes carry a song of youth in their depths.

Turns Down Offer

She still plays tennis, swims and rides horseback and reads incessantly. She longs for the country.

So that is the real Ethel Barrymore who believes her power to hold an audience is partially psychic, who turned down only the other day the largest offer ever made to a stage star to enter the talking motion pictures and whose big dream is to have her children on the stage with her.

She is a great actress, a great mother and a great lady.

CONGRESSMAN IS SPEAKER AT LA RUE

Legion Sponsors Services Dedicating Soldiers' Monument; Band Concert

LA RUE, July 5 — Congressman Grant I. Mouser was the speaker at the patriotic services which marked the dedication of the monument erected by citizens of LaRue in the LaRue cemetery Thursday afternoon. The monument honors the soldiers of the Civil and World wars.

Members of the Clarence Philippi post, American Legion, who sponsored the erection of the monument, were in charge of the program which opened with music by the LaRue band and the invocation spoken by the Rev. Father John Kelly, pastor of St. Joseph Catholic church. H. D. Maurice, representing the citizens gave a brief talk and Ralph Duncan, representing the post, also gave an address and read the roster of the deceased members of the post.

Congressman Mouser paid a high tribute to the soldiers of all wars and gave a brief review of the Civil, Spanish American and World wars. Theodore McElhaney, past commander, who served as master of ceremonies, conducted the dedicatory ceremonial and two wreaths were placed on the monument by Mrs. Basil Ridgeway, widow of a Civil war veteran and Mrs. Elmer Harris, president of the American Legion auxiliary. The benediction was pronounced by the Rev. J. T. Carter, pastor of the Methodist church. Music by the LaRue band featured the program.

The holiday was celebrated with a band concert in the business district and fireworks display in the evening.
